This Is It!

This is it! The tobacco harvestor that was demonstrated last week at the Southside Experiment Station. Note how the twisted belt gathers the plant. The plant is cut with a rotary blade.

There was considerable debate about its merits by growers who watched the performance.

This machine was developed for Maryland tobacco. Maryland growers cut their tobacco, haul it to the barn, and there it's spudded in the shade of the barn and hung. "Can we do the same with fire-cured tobacco?" was the big question.

The machine sells for $2500.00 FOB Baltimore. Seventeen have been sold this year. One went to Canada.

Tour Corn Plot

Twenty-two growers participated in the tour of the DeKalb Corn plot located on the Hix Brothers' Farm. Corn growers are welcomed to stop by and visit this variety trial at their convenience.

Gerald Long, DeKalb Sales Representative extols the merits of his company's corn.

"Ours and all ASCS offices throughout the nation, will function as information centers in all locations outside of highly urbanized areas," Mr. Alvis said.

County ASCS offices are not to handle complaints or appeals, he said. They will serve only to provide official information. Persons with complaints will register them with the most convenient district or sub-district office of the Internal Revenue Service.

"Neither will interpretations or guesses be made by ASCS county office people. They will answer only those questions for which they have been supplied answers. If they don't know the answer to a specific question, they will say so. If a member of the public wants the county office to obtain an answer, the question will go by phone or mail to the nearest IRS district office," Mr. Alvis said.

Normal function of ASCS county offices is to administer farm action programs of the U. S. Department of Agriculture on the local level. County committee Chairman Alvis said ASCS service to farmers will continue without interruption.

"Our county office people welcome the opportunity to serve their country and are happy to make the extra effort in this crucial period," he said.
